OCTOBER 17th 2022

Winter Is Coming

It doesn't seem too long ago that we were all complaining about the hot weather and how unbearable it was. An English Summer is usually a very fleeting thing and soon forgotten.

As the Oktoberfest Season draws to a close, brewers in the UK are starting to release their latest dark beers to tie in with the long winter evenings.

Such is the glory of beer - from one minute enjoying a chilled pale ale in the garden in the sunshine, to slowly sipping an Imperial Stout by the fireside on a dark winter's evening.

50 Pubs a Month Closing in England & Wales

Pretty grim news all round this week. Let's start with the news that UK pubs are currently closing at the rate of 50-per-month. However this is a slight improvement on the 20-per-week rate that was reported at the start of 2022.

Too Little, Too Late

Predictably, the NTIA greeted the Government's Energy Price Guarantee, which fixed Electricity at 35% and Gas at 41% of wholesale prices respectively, as "too little, too late". At this stage, anything short of free energy and zero taxes would likely receive a similar response.

The Future of Cask Beer

The Pub Curmudgeon published a considered response this week to the ongoing debate about how to save cask beer. Fewer lines of fresher beer is a good idea and that applies not only to cask, but should also be considered for kegs at certain Taprooms.

The Podcast with Track Brewing Co.

You can listen to the Podcast by downloading through the normal channels, including Apple and Spotify from 4am Monday.

EPISODE 130 - TRACK BREWING CO.

We are delighted to welcome to the podcast, Stef from Track Brewing Co, based in Manchester.

Track was born out of the inspiration that owner Sam Dyson gained in 2008 when he set out to cycle around the World. As Sam crossed from East Coast to West in the USA, he saw what the future of beer could become, and set about bringing it to the UK when he returned.

Seven years later, Track was born under the arches beneath Manchester Piccadilly, and a couple of moves and a pandemic later, Track have opened a fabulous new Brewery and Taproom across the street from their close friends at Cloudwater, which is where we recorded this conversation.
